The operatives seized a total of 727 million pesos (US$13.6 million) worth of the drug, also known as "ice", which they believed was intended for local use.

The agency said it arrested five Hongkongers, two of whom were chemists.

Other stashes of the drug were found in another two operations. The seizures weighed 107kg in total.

PDEA spokesperson Derrick Carreon told reporters that the laboratory could produce at least 40kg to 50kg of illegal drugs a week.

PDEA chief Aaron Aquino said that the suspects were members of the Hong Kong-based triad 14K, an international drug syndicate that operates in Hong Kong and mainland China.

He said it took his agency four months to conduct the operations in partnership with China and Hong Kong.
